

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

ROSA PARKS

For the next Black History Month, NBM’s library of biographies presents the inspiring story in comics of the Black woman activist who was instrumental in propelling the Civil Rights Movement: Rosa Parks. She resolutely sat down in the wrong section of her segregated bus in Montgomery, AL and the rest is History.

In this book for all ages, the comics story is about her, leading up to this significant activist act, presented in today's context to underline its continued significance. A young black man gets to find out and be inspired by her actions now so long ago. In back matter, Martin Luther King's call for calm and non-violence to his people of Montgomery after the Supreme Court ruling that such segregation is unconstitutional, the further story of Parks' activism afterward and a list of further reading are presented.

Next in the NBM Comics Biography series: we’ve got a major tome of a bio on the superlative Alfred Hitchcock and many will be excited to know our next volume in our music subseries will present David Bowie In Comics.
